Parth Sehtiya

Ombudsperson

“ A major role of the CUS Ombudsperson is to listen and address the feedback and suggestions of Sauder Students and to fix administrative malpractices by making reports. By attending meetings from various committees, I closely observed the operations and learnt how the administration of big organizations like CUS work. ”

Philip Shi

2nd Year Representative

“ One thing I like about being a year rep is connecting with students not only across my cohort but across Sauder. I had the chance to meet many new faces in the Sauder and through having quick conversations with them, I was able to hear their stories and understand the various issues that matter to them.

Dhiraj Hariramani

Third Year Representative

It is more than just representing third year students as it provides opportunities to be a part of various activities. I have had the opportunity to be a part of the Budget oversight committee, the vice chairperson of the awards committee and even play a role in some awesome initiatives.

Second Year Representative

My favourite aspect of this opportunity was the election process. It requires you to put yourself in the spotlight and outside of your comfort zone to express your views and ideas to the rest of society.

Jason Liao

First Year Representative

“ Since moving to UBC, there hasn't been a day that has gone by where someone hasn't approached me to say “hi”. People genuinely seek out their FYR for representation - and in a time like this, being the familiar face that Sauderites reach out to for support, connection, or even a (non-alcoholic) drink has given me a sense of fulfillment I seldom feel. ”

“

My experience on the CUS has been truly inspiring and has helped me improve my interpersonal skills. I am now more confident in professional settings and have had the opportunity to learn from a variety of different perspectives. The CUS is filled with many kind and motivated individuals who want to enhance the Sauder community and I encourage you all to join.

Kristian Oppenheim

President

“

Working with these individuals on a daily basis is a privilege that inspires you to put your best foot forward everyday. As President, you can see all areas of the CUS and Sauder community develop over the course of the year and influence how they will grow in the future.

AMS Representative

Not only do you meet exceptional people from varying faculties at AMS Council, you can also make a lot of impact as a director by debating massive university-wide issues, bringing up specific concerns that you might want to address, as well as represent the voices of commerce students in many large-scale topics.
